M'NAB REPEATS HIS ATTACK

In Bristling Statement He Accuses McReynolds of Attempt to Throttle Cases

WASHINGTON, June 25.—After considering the charges brought against Atty.-Gen. McReynolds by United States Dist. Atty. McNab, San Francisco, at yesterday's cabinet session, President Wilson last night accepted McNab's resignation and approved the course taken by McReynolds.

Accepts McNab's Resignation

The president last night sent the following telegram to John I. McNab, San Francisco:

"I greatly regret that you should have acted so hastily, and under so complete a misapprehension of the actual circumstances, but, since you have chosen such a course and have given your resignation the form of an inexcusable intimation of injustice and wrongdoing on the part of your superior, I release you without hesitation and accept your resignation to take effect at once."

Approves McReynolds Course

To Atty. Gen. McReynolds, the president wrote as follows:

"My Dear Attorney General: Allow me to acknowledge with sincere appreciation your letter of today giving me a full account of the way in which the department of justice has dealt with the Diggs-Camenetti and the Western Fuel Co. cases pending in California, and transmitting the documents connected with the two cases necessary for their elucidation. I am entirely satisfied that the course you took in both these cases was prompted by sound and impartial judgment and a clear instinct for what was fair and right. I approve your course very heartily and without hesitation. But I agree with you that what we may think of what has been done, does not relieve us of the obligation to press these cases with the utmost diligence and energy. I approve heartily of your suggestion that in the circumstances special counsel be employed, the best we can obtain. I will be very glad to confer with you about the selection. I hope that you will do this without delay. I am very glad indeed that you are giving your personal attention to the immediate and diligent prosecution of the cases, which I agree with you in regarding as of serious importance from every point of view."

FAT LADIES TESTIFY TO JOLT GIVEN THEIR HOPE OF SLENDERNESS

DENVER, Col., June 25.—The fat ladies went to bat for the first time today in the trial of Walter C. Cunningham and wife, on charge of using the mails to defraud by advertising an obesity cure, and the sigh of satisfaction which escaped them from the capacious bosoms of eighteen heavyweight government witnesses sounded like the tail-end of a China sea typhoon.

Mrs. Nellie M. Johnson, 200 pounds, of Good Hope, Ill., testified that she had received the advertising of the Marjorie Hamilton company, and had sent $10 for a booklet, purporting to show a sure cure for fatness. She said that after keeping the booklet for thirty days and trying the treatment prescribed therein, she returned the pamphlet in disgust. Her demands for the return of her money, she said, were ignored.

Late yesterday afternoon the government read to the jury literature circulated by the defendants, claiming to cure obesity. The literature set forth that Marjorie Hamilton, the beautiful defendant who before her marriage to Cunningham, was known as "The Calendar Girl," once weighed 162 pounds which, through the use of the remedy she had discovered, was reduced to 125 pounds in five weeks. The government alleges these statements are false, and that the fair Marjorie not only never discovered the cure but never weighed over 135.

CONKLIN IS SAFE IN SAN FRANCISCO

Son of La Crosse Woman Wires Her He Has Escaped from Mexican Rebels

BRINGS FORTUNE IN GOLD BULLION

Believed American Gunboat Brought Engineer and $400,000 Treasure to United States

Harry T. Conklin, son of Mrs. Mary L. Conklin, 328 South Eighth street, has arrived safely in San Francisco, according to a wire received by his mother here today. It is thought that he arrived on a United States gunboat which was sent to his relief after he had been held virtually a prisoner by Mexican rebels in Topobolampo, a seaport on the east coast of the Gulf of California.

The plight of Mr. Conklin attracted widespread national interest. Through the efforts of Congressman John J. Esch, to whom Mrs. Conklin appealed to save her son, an American gunboat was sent to enforce the release of Mr. Conklin and a party of several other Americans who were held in the Mexican port.

Mr. Conklin had $400,000 in gold bullion with him at the time, which he brought safely home with him, according to his telegram to his mother. The fortune in his possession heightened the fears for his safety, as the treasure would have been a rich prize for the rebels.

This is the second time that Mr. Conklin has been in imminent danger in Mexico, where he is superintendent of a large mine in the interior, the property of an American mining syndicate. Once before a village of Mexicans near his mine was shelled. He sheltered the inhabitants and defied the rebels, and narrowly escaped to this country.

Returned After Revolt When the Huerta government killed Diaz and captured Mexico City, it appeared as if troubles were over in the republic, and Mr. Conklin returned, but Diaz supporters attacked the country refused to accept the new government, and soon its only power was in the small territory about Mexico City. The rest of Mexico is even more disturbed than before the recent revolution.

Mrs. Conklin said today that her son intends to go to New York on business at once, but that within a few weeks she expects him to visit her at La Crosse.

ACCEPT RATE DECISION.

ST. PAUL, June 25.—After a conference lasting several hours yesterday there is in force in Minnesota today an agreement between the state railroad and warehouse commission and eight of the biggest railroads in the state, to establish the rates recently made valid by United States supreme court and to repay without question all excess charges during the period of litigation.

The roads represented at the conference were the Rock Island, the Northwestern, Soo, Minneapolis & St. Louis, the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific, Burlington, and the St. Paul. The roads agreed to pay all claims made directly to them, but the commission reserved the right to present claims for the shippers.

WOMAN THIEF ENIGMA

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 25.—Held while detectives investigate stories of women who have been robbed in passenger stations, Mrs. Harry Hanen, a fashionably gowned and educated woman, today proved an enigma for the police. The woman was arrested yesterday by Patrolman George Hamnerott at the Milwaukee station after Mrs. Mary Stevens had missed her purse in the station and it had been turned over to the maid by the mysterious woman. Several other women in the room, according to Mrs. Stevens and the police, declared they saw Mrs. Hanen take the purse from Mrs. Stevens' hand.

TWO NEAR DEATH AS BOAT TURTLES

Boys in Skiff Overtaken by Wind Yesterday Reach River Bank Exhausted

Two boys rowing a small skiff in the Mississippi a few hundred yards below the wagon bridge barely escaped with their lives yesterday afternoon when their boat capsized with the first rush of the furious windstorm.

A small group of people who were watching the heavy black clouds saw a small boat leave the Minnesota side of the river, and head for the Wisconsin side. As the boat got half way across the stream, the wind struck them.

The boys were sitting near the back of the boat, one rowing and the other in the rear seat which caused the front end to be raised a few inches above the water. As the wind struck them, the boat was seen to be almost swept out of the water. It was turned upside down and the two boys were thrown into the water. A few seconds after the boat was capsized the water of the river was in waves from four to six feet high.

Those on the bridge watched the efforts of the boys, swimming toward the Minnesota shore, powerless to help them. The boys fell exhausted when they reached the shore. The boat was lost.

The two boys did not return to their homes, but came across the bridge to this city where they stayed over night at the home of a friend.

BALKAN PEACE OUTLOOK BETTER

Reported that Bulgaria and Servia Will Accept Russian Arbitration Offer

LONDON, June 25.—Official confirmation was lacking today of the reports from Sofia and Belgrade that Bulgaria and Servia would accept the arbitration offer of Russia, but it was believed that the outlook for peace in the Balkans is much improved. It is said that the reconstructed Servian cabinet will be strongly for peace and will meet the czar's proposals and a special dispatch from Sofia said that Bulgaria is ready to submit all disputes to arbitration. Pressure by Russia and the other powers is believed to have softened the heretofore belligerent attitude of all the allies.

MOB MILITANTS

LONDON, June 25.—Militant suffragettes who thronged to see President Poincare as he proceeded from New York house to the Guild hall this afternoon were roughly handled by a mob of men and boys after the French visitor's carriage had passed. The skirts were torn off women and the hats of others were trampled before policemen rescued them.

CALL ADVANCES UNREASONABLE

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Proposed freight advances on empty fruit carriers being returned to California after shipment were today declared unreasonable by the interstate commerce commission and present rates ordered continued.

AGREE ON TERMS OF DISSOLUTION

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Following a lengthy conference with Judge Robert S. Lovett, president of the Union Pacific, and Paul Cravath, attorney for the corporation, Attorney General McReynolds announced this afternoon that a satisfactory understanding in regard to the Union and the Southern Pacific dissolution proceedings had been reached.

MORE THAN SCORE ARE THOUGHT DEAD

Only Six Bodies Recovered from Ruins of Buffalo Mill Wrecked by Blast

PASSING TRAIN IS DEMOLISHED

One Man Blown 500 Feet by Force of the Explosion in a Corn Pit

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 25.—Until the firemen and police finish the work of searching the ruins or verify the names of the 172 persons known to be in the buildings yesterday afternoon, the exact number known to have been killed in an explosion and fire at the Husted Milling company's plant cannot be accurately ascertained.

The known dead at 9 o'clock this morning was six. The body of a man was removed from the ruins at 7 a. m. Another man died in the emergency hospital today. Of the sixty-seven injured in the various hospitals, the surgeons say a score may succumb to burns and other injuries. Assistant Fire Chief Murphy places the number of bodies still in the ruins at 15.

The known dead: John Conroy, Nickel Plate engineer; Michael King, 40; Anthony Kruger, 30; William Widowsky, 41; Henry Vetter, 45, mill foreman; unidentified man, burned.

A Nickel Plate passenger train was passing the plant when the first explosion occurred. Although the track is 150 feet from the mill, the engineer and fireman were blown from the cab. A young man was run down and killed by an automobile carrying a physician hurrying to the scene.

Man Blown 500 Feet One of the men working near the pit where the explosion occurred was blown through the roof of the building and over the railroad trestle 500 feet away. He died on the way to the hospital.

The explosion was caused by spontaneous combustion in a pit where many tons of corn were stored. The first sign of disturbance was when a great tongue of flame burst from the corn pit, followed an instant later by a tremendous explosion. This was succeeded by several others. The rear wall collapsed, burying a large number of the workmen.

Three passengers of the Nickel Plate passenger train which was passing the mills at the time of the explosion, were able to leave the hospital today. They were injured by flying glass.

Cool Ruins All night engines pumped water on the ruins to cool them sufficiently to allow of a further search. It was observed that many of the employees of the mill, even those not much injured, were seemingly driven out of their senses by the shock. Some had to be calmed by force.

Edwin M. Husted, president of the company owning the establishment, estimated the property loss on building and contents at $500,000, fully insured.

Two more victims of the explosion died at the hospital today, making a total of eight dead as a result of the accident which injured more than a score of other workmen. It was stated that at least eight more victims would probably die and a canvass of the workmen's homes by the police this afternoon revealed that eighteen are still missing. It is feared their bodies may be in the ruins.

STRIKING OPERATORS HAPPY

ST. LOUIS, June 25.—Striking telephone operators and maintenance men were highly elated today following a conference of a committee from the Central Trades and Labor union with General Manager W. J. Hiss of the Southwestern Telegraph and Telephone company at which negotiations with a view toward amicable adjustment of their differences were started. David Kreyling, chairman of the committee, would not say whether the offers made by Hiss were favorable to an early settlement of the trouble, but it was apparent he deemed them worthy of careful consideration.

CALL I. H. C. FAIR

CHICAGO, June 25.—Two witnesses testifying in the hearing of the government's suit against the International Harvester company declared that the Harvester company is fair in all its hearings with competitors. They were T. E. Stephenson, Moline, Ill., dealer in farming implements, and Dr. F. T. Rumley, Sycamore, Ill., head of one of the branch factories of the Laporte, Ind., concern.

TARIFF CRISIS TODAY

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The crisis in the wool and sugar fight in the democratic caucus was expected to be reached late this afternoon. Progress in the measure today was rather slow. Leaders confidently predicted that the administration bill would be upheld by all save a few scattering votes.

NEUROLOGIST ASTOUNDS FELLOWS BY ADVOCACY OF WOMEN'S TROUSERS

CHICAGO, June 25.—"Trousers for women," advocated by Dr. H. C. Norris of Enderlin, N. D., threw the convention of American Neurologists and Allentists into a hubbub of discussion when the sessions were resumed today.

Dr. Norris' remark, interjected into a technical discussion as to why society women lose their minds, was the sensation of the meeting.

"It is the woman who dolls herself up who falls," said the alienist. "No girl simply dressed is bothered by the tempter. It is she who is dressed to call attention of the male animal to her charms who is tempted."

"On the other hand women find that their clothes keep them back. I would wipe from the statute books laws forbidding women to wear male attire. Then when a woman grows tired of her sex, let her cut off her hair, don men's trousers, so she can enter the business world and compete with him on an equal footing."

"But I think women's styles are more sensible today than ever before," said Dr. Harold Mercer of Chicago, commenting upon Dr. Norris' accusations today. "The fewer skirts they wear, the better."

"Without contradicting Dr. Norris," said Dr. Mary E. Pogue of Lake Geneva, Wis., "I should like to ask him what men doll up for."

SALOONMEN CALLED ON CARPET TONIGHT

Licenses May Be Refused to Those Found to Be Conducting Objectionable Resorts

Thirteen La Crosse saloonkeepers have been "called on the carpet" before the council license committee tonight.

These men are the ones to whom licenses were recently refused to give the committee opportunity to investigate charges that they were not conducting their places in strict compliance with state and city laws.

The special water committee of the council is meeting today at the site of the new water plant to determine minor questions relative to the new plan.

At a meeting of the bridge committee scheduled for tonight the proposition to paint the wagon bridge will be decided. Alderman Torrance has called a special meeting of the finance committee for 3 o'clock this afternoon.

MAY OUST MELLON

BOSTON, Mass., June 25.—Following a report that Morgan and company, their allied interests, and the Pennsylvania railroad had turned over their voting proxy to their New Haven stockholders' committee, the rumor that President Charles S. Mellon, head of the New Haven railroad system, is to be deposed was revived today in State street circles. The next annual meeting is the date set for the ousting of President Mellon, according to report today.

BLAMES WAR FOR LACK OF CREDIT

Banking Committee Member Differs with Morgan on Cause of Bond Issue Failures

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Scarcity of large masses of credit, rather than "death of cold, hard cash," is the cause of recent failure of large bond issues, Representative Bulkley of Ohio, a veteran member of the house banking committee declared today.

In commenting today for the United Press on the testimony of J. P. Morgan yesterday that the call for money exceeds the supply, Bulkley today took issue with the head of the "house of Morgan."

"Too much capital is now tied up in fixed investments," he said. "Fixed capital is worse than capital in unproductive field. Fixed investment issues lately have not been absorbed and large issues of bonds are in the hands of underwriters who have been unable to pass them along. This condition obtains in Europe also, probably European in greater force than in this country."

"It is due, I believe, especially in Europe, to the fact that great masses of capital were spent in the Balkan war—an utterly unproductive field. It took years to overcome similar stringency following the pouring of money in the Russo-Japanese war."

"The present condition appears to me to be a lack of large mass credit, rather than a scarcity of cash. The actual circulation of currency in this country has decreased very little, fluctuating from time to time."

MANY DEATHS IN CANADIAN WRECK

OTTAWA, Ont., June 25.—The western express on the Canadian Pacific road, loaded with immigrants, was wrecked three miles west of here this afternoon. Four coaches plunged down a steep embankment into the Ottawa river. Reports reaching here say that ten bodies have been recovered and it is feared the death toll will be heavy. Spreading rails caused the accident, it is said.

EXPLAINS PLAN TO AVERT BIG PANICS

Congressman Shows How Currency Stringency Is to Be Counteracted by Proposed Law

RESERVE BREAKS TIGHT GRIP

Banker Refused Money by Wall Street Can Obtain Emergency Currency

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Representative Stanley Bowdye of Ohio today wrote the following "primary lesson" on panics and how the Wilson-Glass currency bill proposes to prevent them.

(By Stanley J. Bowdye, Representative from Ohio.)

"A panic is simply shortage of money at the factory and it operates precisely like a shortage of cars at a mine. You can do nothing but discharge your hands and sit down and think—and to get ready and to wait for the receiver to take charge when the bank gets ready to make the last squeeze."

Can't Get Money.

"A panic may prevent you getting money, even the money you have actually deposited in the bank—so that you may be utterly ruined."

"You say to yourself: 'My goods are in demand everywhere; the men who owe me are good. I have their notes. The community knows that I am all right. Why then can't I get money?'"

"You go over to the bank and ask for a loan. The banker tells you, 'That tariff bill is causing trouble,' or 'New York has tightened up on us'—and so on.

"In a way that bank is up against it. New York has got control. That bank has good commercial paper, but it can do nothing with it. If it could get money for that paper temporarily all would be well, but it can't."

"Right here is where the new currency bill comes in. It provides for the establishment of 'federal reserve' banks in the larger cities. These banks have power to issue $500,000,000 in currency to the needy banks. The banker we have spoken of can take his commercial paper to the federal reserve banks and get actual money for it."

Must Act.

"But you are saying, 'Suppose that reserve bank refuses to act.' But they must act. The bill provides that local reserve banks shall be controlled by a federal board at Washington. Your banker may appeal directly to this board, and what is more, the local reserve bank will have three directors who represent the commercial, agricultural and industrial interests of the district. These men must not be bankers, just business men."

The objections of the bankers affiliated with the American Bankers' association to the Wilson-Glass currency bill will be considered by President Wilson this evening. The president has arranged for a conference at the White house between Chairman Glass of the house currency committee, Senator Owen, chairman of the senate committee, Geo. M. Reynolds, president of the Continental and Commercial National bank of Chicago, John Perrin of Los Angeles, and A. Barton Hepburn, at which the latter three will give the president and the committee chairmen the side of the bankers.

They will urge that before the bill is introduced next Tuesday it be strengthened along various lines. It is expected that the bankers will ask for minority representation of their number on the federal reserve board and for redistribution of the bank reserves in favor of the country banks.

COUNTY DOES NOT HAVE TO REPAIR M'GILVRAY ROAD

Judge Higbee in Decision Filed Tuesday Holds the Highway Is Not and Never Was County's

COURT SETTLES OLD DISPUTE

Ownership of Road Fund for Debate for Years and Caused Many Fights Among Supervisors

DESTROYED BY FLOOD OF 1911

Black River Falls Disaster Responsible for Present Poor Condition of the Highway

Residents of the town of Holland lost their fight to compel La Crosse county to repair the famous McGilvray road when Circuit Judge E. C. Higbee, in a decision filed late Tuesday, refused to issue the peremptory writ of mandamus asked in the petition filed by Tom Johnson and eleven other residents of the town. The order asked would have compelled the county to repair the road.

District Attorney David S. Law opposed the plan in behalf of the county and Attorney James Thompson represented the town of Holland which demurred from the petition of the residents. Attorney George W. Bunge appeared for the petitioners. The decision of Judge Higbee is interesting inasmuch as the court holds that the road is not and never was a legal county highway. This settled the old discussion as to just who is responsible for the upkeep of the highway and leaves the burden of expense for repairs and maintenance upon the town of Holland.

Destroyed by 1911 Flood

The Black River Falls flood in 1911 destroyed portions of the road and made it practically unfit for travel. It was then that the petitioners in the cause just decided started their campaign to compel the road's repair. All of the petitioners are holders of farm lands adjacent to the road.

Their first efforts were directed upon the town of Holland. The town flatly refused to repair the highway maintaining that the road was built with funds appropriated by the county and had, in fact, been adopted as a county highway. The farmers next directed their efforts upon the county board and as a result the county clerk was instructed to send notices to the town of Holland that the road must be repaired by the town or the county would do the work and assess the costs against the town in the next tax assessment. The town refused to comply with the county's order.

Wanted County to Do Work

The petitioners then conceived the plan of securing an order from the circuit court directing the county to do the work and to assess the costs against the town. Their petition for this order was filed early in March.

The county, in its turn, admitted the need of the repairs prayed for but denied that the road was a county highway and argued that there is no county funds available for road repair work. The county also maintained that, had the road at an early date been adopted as a county highway as the petitioners claimed, the adoption by the La Crosse county board of chapter 337 of the laws of 1911 made all roads within the county town roads.

The decision of Judge Higbee contains a complete history of the road and includes the assertion that "it needs no discussion or argument to show that the road was not laid out as a county highway."

Not Adopted by Resolution

The attorneys for the petitioners based their claim that the road was a county highway chiefly on a resolution adopted by the county board in November, 1894. In his decision Judge Higbee maintains that the question was the real intent of the supervisors by the adoption of this resolution, and in proof of his contention that it was not to adopt the road he quotes from that resolution which recites its purpose to be "to place the aforesaid public highway and papers pertaining thereto properly on record in the office of the county clerk."

AIR CAUSES DEATH

CAMDEN, N. J., June 25.—Officials today began a thorough investigation into the death of Joseph De Pine, 18, who died yesterday after two companions pumped compressed air into his body, rupturing his stomach and intestines. Demands have been made for an extensive probe into the affair which Eugene Byscher and William Simon say began as a "joke."

IN The WORLD OF WOMEN

The National Union of Woman Suffrage in England is planning an immense pilgrimage to London. The organization has more than 400 branches, and it is expected that women from all over England will march to the ruling city where a service will be held at old St. Paul's. It is promised that the "hike" will make those of the American suffragists pale into insignificance.

Mrs. Lawrence Lewis, Jr., of Philadelphia, has been appointed general chairman of the committee to arrange for the National Woman Suffrage convention in Washington in December. Mrs. Harvey Wiley has been named to head the Washington reception committee and Mrs. Helen M. Gardener has been chosen chairman of the program committee.

PROFESSIONALISM SEASON IS OPEN

Annual Fuss Over College Boy Baseball Players Is About to Begin

DEMARCATON LINE IS DIM

Athletes May Accept Money for Anything Not In Their Own Particular Line

BY HAL SHERIDAN.
(Written for the United Press.)
NEW YORK, June 13.—A terrible catastrophe is upon us. It happens every year, being more regular than the visit of the seven year locusts, but in view of certain upheavals during the past year it brings a new sting. With voices from the sidelines urging that the secret be spilled, we refer to the closing of the regular college year and the turning loose throughout the country of several thousand student baseball players who will be tempted sorely to risk fate and take upon themselves the Q. T. of course—the terrible blight of "professionalism." Sport was certainly on the blink and seldom or never on the first pages when those immortal lines asking "What is so rare as a day in June," were penned, or the answer would have been obvious to a blind man. A real honest-to-goodness amateur is the answer. Such a personage is rarer than two days in June, or than twelve hours in June. Which settles that point, but doesn't settle the question of summer baseball playing by college men.

To Strengthen Clubs
Some of the bush league and semi-professional clubs throughout the country are likely to make some shifts and take on new strength during the next few weeks, and though we would never suggest outright that the new bloods were fresh from the halls of learning, it isn't going too far to opine casually that although the names will not be similar, there will be resemblance between some of these new semi-professional players and certain college baseball stars of whom we wot that would be startling to the erstwhile college chums of these players.

Line is Dim
As a matter of fact, the harder you look for the fine line of demarcation between "professional" and "amateur" athletes, the dimmer it becomes. There are hundreds, possibly thousands of students who are working their way through college. Some of them are good ball players. During the vacation months they must rustle enough wherewithal to carry them through the next term. To earn this money they may drive trucks, dig in sewers, work on section gangs, clerk, or do anything but play ball. If they accept money for playing ball—and are found out—they are dubbed "professionals" and are barred from all future competition in college or any kind of amateur sports.

At the opening of every football season a dozen or more players frankly admit that they have spent the summer working in the Kansas wheat fields, throwing a sledge with a railroad construction gang, or what not chiefly to get into condition. It is taken for granted that these men were paid for the work they did to get themselves into physical shape to play football. Now, when you ruminate over these instances it does seem a bit foolish that a baseball player can't keep himself in condition by taking a small job with some bush league team during the summer.

Can't Get Away With It
A baseball man might plead that he wanted to play summer ball in order to condition himself for the next season, but he couldn't get away with it. He might swear he didn't receive a cent of money for his job but few would believe him. And what a yelp there would be from the stone quarries, section gangs and blacksmith shops where the football players were conditioning themselves, if they had to do their training at those jobs without pay.

Now the point is not to change the rules to permit a return of the conditions which existed in the notorious old days of "ringers" when the college or university with the most money could "buy" a championship by literally hiring athletes. College authorities are urged to look the matter squarely in the face and allow some leeway. Certain it is that there should be rules to prevent real professionals from being enlisted on college teams, but it is just as certainly a bad thing to prevent bona fide amateur baseball players from playing through the summer months on bush league or semi-professional teams. The rule could permit students playing on any teams not directly under the national baseball commission, or it could go further and state what leagues or clubs the students could not play on and retain their amateur standing. The suggestion is not wholly original, so it isn't boosting our own game to say that it is a mighty good one. Take it for what it's worth, you college solons and amateur athletic union officials.

HANDS CRACKING AND BLEEDING

With Eczema. Watery Blisters. Disfigured and Sore. Could Not Put Them in Water. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

St. Clair, Mo.—"My trouble began about fifteen years ago. It was what some claimed eczema. The form the disease worked under was a breaking out with watery blisters on my hands which would then dry and scale, and then would follow the trouble of cracking and bleeding, also itching and hurting. My hands were disfigured at the time, and sore. The trouble was very annoying, and disturbed my sleep. This last February it was ever so much worse than before. I did not do all my work on account of the condition of my hands. I could not put them in water without making them worse. I tried a lot of home remedies, also salves and liniments that claimed to be a cure for the trouble, but I did not obtain a cure.

"At last I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a sample. I thought they would cure, so I sent for a fifty-cent box of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and some Cuticura Soap. A doctor advised me to keep ahead with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they cured me completely. No trace of the trouble remains." (Signed) Mrs. Mary Taylor, Mar. 29, 1912.

NEW PARIS FASHION INTERESTS SOCIETY

The newest Paris fashion that has come to the centers of society in the United States of every city which boasts a "Four Hundred" is the ornamentation of the hair with a pearl band. Society women in some of the watering places along the Atlantic coast have been seen wearing similar ornaments.

The band is filled with pearls or similar ornaments and bound tightly about the hair, in some cases giving an effect like the Grecian.

Merciful Wife.

Middle Age Mortality.
Insurance men are noting an increasing middle-age mortality. In this country it has increased 20 per cent in thirty years. In England it has been very much less.

Don't waste an hour, here is a treatment that will cure your feet quickly. No matter how many patent medicines you have tried in vain this treatment, formerly known only to doctors, will give prompt results. Dissolve two table-spoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet in this for full fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts. The effects are marvelous. All pain goes instantly and the feet feel simply delightful. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off; bunions, aching feet, sweaty smelling feet, get immediate relief. Use this a week and your foot troubles will be a thing of the past. Calocide works through the pores and removes the cause. Any druggist has it in stock or will quickly get it. A twenty-five cent package is said to be enough to cure the worst feet.

THE TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

HER IDEAL HUSBAND

By LAURA ADELIA KIRKMAN

(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

When Harold Dane agreed with his bride that they should never drop into the rut of carelessness that swallows up so many married couples, he had not yet realized what a deep affection he had for his smoking jacket and his seasoned pipe and his disreputable old slippers.

The realization came only after a month of married life—after a month of dinner coats and patent-leathers and cigarettes smoked out of doors. Then his thoughts turned longingly to the attic trunk which held the neglected old friends.

But his wife had no suspicion of his regrets.

"How perfectly we are living up to our resolutions, Harold!" she said one night as she put on "just for ourselves" a bespangled dinner gown.

"Perfectly," he repeated with a guilty ring in his voice. Only that moment he had been wishing that he could sneak away to the attic and take a long pull at the reeking pipe.

"I might as well burn my old purple and red kimono," went on Helene with enthusiasm. "I shall never use it again."

Harold became nervous. He feared that her next suggestion would be the demolition of his old things.

"Better not," he advised. "You might feel under the weather some time and just want to get into it."

She laughed scornfully. "I'm above such things now. I could no longer respect a person who indulged himself in such low creature comforts. Dearest, I'm so glad you are not like other men! I couldn't bear a man who sat around looking like a coal heaver. Yes, you are the ideal husband!" How other women must envy me!

Harold sighed, wondering if the glory were worth the price. For a week he tried to live on that alone. Then his aching feet just put themselves down on such nonsense.

"Get me out of these burning vases," they commanded. "Get me back into my old mangled carpet slippers!"

And meekly, weakly, Harold obeyed. Telling Helene that he was called out on business, he sneaked up to the attic after dinner and stayed there until he was certain that she had gone to bed.

And what a reunion it was! How the old coat felt on his shoulders and hugged him, and the slippers spread themselves beneath his feet and the pipe reeked its greeting into his nostrils!

"Good-by—till next time," he said fondly as he laid them back in the trunk at the end of the evening.

But it was a month before next time came. Helen herself afforded the opportunity.

"I've got to go to Maud's to-night," she said regretfully. "I'm sorry, dear; you'll be lonely here, won't you? But you see I promised—"

Hastily he assured her that he should find something to do that would make the time pass quickly. He flew around for her, finding everything she needed—from her wrap to the silver-mesh bag.

"I'll take you to her door," he said, inwardly mourning the time that would be wasted by so doing.

He wasn't disloyal to Helene, but—

"Don't worry if you don't find me at home when you get back," he told her at her friend's door. "I may run out to see Thompson."

It took him about three minutes to get home; and about three seconds to get from the first floor to the third.

And once again he descended to creature comforts, and sat around like a coalheaver.

"If she should ever catch me at it!" he whistled. "Well, nice little girl, I wouldn't have her otherwise. Women aren't made to understand—they don't work all day and get home at six, dog tired. The fault's mine; I should have begun differently—sort of educated her down to it."

With his arms stretching themselves in baggy coat sleeves and his lungs full of his old friend's breath, he felt in a mood to forgive all the world everything and anything.

Almost tearfully, he laid away away at ten o'clock and went down to the library to await his wife's return.

Two months passed before he had another chance to retrogress.

"I shall have to stay all night with Maud," said his wife this time. "You see, Tom's going away, and she's afraid to stay in the house all alone. I really couldn't refuse to, dear."

"Of course not," he approved heartily.

After she had gone—she went in a cab this time—Harold made an ascent to the third floor that was not wholly dignified. He took the precaution of locking the door at the foot of the attic stairs, as the maid happened to be at home and might take it into her illogical head to come up for some reason or other.

He felt so good when he got into a hob coat that he did a little turn in the middle of the floor—just a little shuffling and a leap or two to let off some of his high spirits. Then he sat down and smoked and yawned aloud.

But after a while he began to wonder if he had forgotten how to do the buck and wing he learned when at college. He was rather captivated by his own agility—by the litheness which the turn had shown him that he still possessed.

"I say, it's not bad!" he exclaimed as he got more and more into the rhythm of the old steps.

Up and down the floor he swung, his breath perhaps coming a little harder, his feet perhaps coming down a little more heavily, but still agile, still lithe—he stopped, froze: a woman's voice rang out on the other side of the door.

"Who's there?" came the hysterical scream.

It was Helene's voice. It gurgled, stopped for breath, then rose more widely than before:

"Help! Help!"

Harold stood a moment in consternation. Then he brought a severe look to his face, and strode to the top of the stairs.

"Helene! Be still!" he called down sternly. "It's only me. Heavens! can't a man—be still, I say! What are you rousing the neighborhood for?"

For a moment there was no sound from the other side of the door. Then a subdued voice faltered a question. "But—who was making all that noise?"

Harold made a long face.

"I'll be down in a moment," he answered with dignity.

He could hear her going along the hall to her room, her breath still hitching as though she had had a pretty bad scare. He stood in troubled indecision; should he put away the things and make up some yarn about needing exercise? Or should he just swagger down in his ragged old coat, with his offensive pipe in his hand and own up?

Being a man, he chose the latter course.

Before he reached her room he heard her sobbing. When he entered she did not look up. Her face was buried in the pillows.

"Now you'll despise me!" she was wailing. "You'll see what a weak creature I am! And, oh, yes, it's true; when I found that Maud's husband hadn't gone after all, I just sneaked home and put on this—because I knew you were going out—"

"What?" said Harold, puzzled.

Then his eyes took in the fact that she was dressed in a robe of garish reds and purples—a dispirited kimono.

"Helene!" he cried joyously, "look at your ideal husband!"

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Way The Battle Ended.

JACK and Evelyn opened their eyes. Daddy said he would tell them how to have a splendid naval show on the pond.

"You can have as many ships as you like, just like Nat and Joe and Kate and Anna had."

"Nat and Kate were the commanders of one fleet, and Joe and Anna had another."

"Their boats were made of oiled paper. The little crafts were made by folding the paper over as daddy can show you how to do. Each little ship had a paper sail."

"They took the ships down to the little brook near their home, and when they found a quiet pool from which the ships could not easily float away Nat and Kate stood at one side of the pool and Joe and Anna at the other."

"The launching was great fun, and it was done as nearly as possible like the launching of a real vessel. Their daddy had told them in cases like that a bottle of wine was usually broken over the bow of the vessel when it was launched, and some one said, 'I christen thee such and such a name.'"

"Of course the children couldn't get a bottle of wine, so Nat and Kate decided that they would use water in which was a little grape juice, while Joe and Anna used weak lemonade."

"They thought a very little of the grape juice and lemonade which their mother gave them would do for the ships so that they could drink the other."

"After the ships were launched and christened the battle began. The children had old fashioned bean shooters. These were long thin tubes of tin, they placed a bean inside and by blowing through one end of the tube could send it wherever they liked. These were the guns with which one fleet fought the other."

"The boys at first could aim better than the girls, and two of the biggest ships in each fleet were soon sunk by well aimed beans that went right through their sides."

"One of Anna's ships stranded on a little island in the middle of the pool, and a part of the game was the agreement that once launched they should not touch their ships."

"It looked as if the fleet under the command of Admirals Nat and Kate would win the battle, when, splash, down the brook came Mrs. Duck leading a large family of ducklings."

"Mrs. Duck had been petted too much by the children to shoo when they told her to, and in a minute she and her ducklings had sunk every ship that floated on the little inland sea."

DEMAND "PUNCH"Editor George Harvey, in the whimsical valedictory in which he bid goodbye to the readers of Harper's Weekly, confessed that the polished but heavy style of writing for which the periodical is famous has gone out of style."Looking over the files the other day," he wrote in announcing the change of ownership, "we found not less than twenty long editorials on civil service in thirty successive issues, and very little else. They were sound, cogent articles and, of course, admirably written, but how would they take on the newstands in this hurrying age?"Not very well, it can be imagined.
The reading public of today is not clamoring for ponderous writing, no matter how sound and cogent it may be.Tastes in reading have changed quite as much as the tastes in clothes. The minutely detailed style went out of vogue with the hoop skirt and the powdered wig. The rounded, perfectly balanced periods
over which our forefathers loved to linger are as old-fashioned as knee breeches and the slashed doublet.The twentieth century public has no objection to thinking big thoughts
but it simply will not tolerate pon-derousness in the handling of them.
The passing generation asked instruction; that of today demands stimulation. The readers of a few years ago delighted in having the point withheld as a last tidbit; readers of the present insist that it be shot at them in the first paragraph.
Words must crack like whips and sting like snakes. They must be pictures as well as sounds.Writing today must be crisp and terse. Thoughts must be boiled down into tabloid form. Force and vim never must be sacrificed for grace. The strong short words must come like shots from a machine gun.
The learned writer has not gone out of vogue, but today he must not parade his learning.The old style was pleasant and gently satisfying; the new is more sincere and purposeful. Because it leans so definitely toward simplicityit is more democratic. The common man, a stranger to books, magazines
and newspapers a decade or so ago,
has been educated to demand a sparkle in every line and a punch in every paragraph.THE PRESIDENT AND CURRENCY REFORMIn a nutshell, as usual, President Wilson has laid down what he regards as the essential of the proposed currency law. He says the monetary reserve must not be concentrated, that the bank reserve must be elastic, and that the government must control.The necessity for currency reform is expressed by the president in the following terms:"What will it profit us to be free,
if we are not to have the best and most accessible instrumentalities of commerce and enterprise? What will it profit us to be quit of one kind of monopoly if we are to remain in the grip of another and more effective kind? The tyrannies of business, big and little, lie within the field of credit. We know that. Shall we not act upon the knowledge?"The nature of the money tyranny from which the nation must be freed
and to which the message makes reference, is made to stand out boldly
in a recent article by Iskander Hour-
wich. Mr. Hourwich, in La Follette's Magazine, quotes James G. Cannon, president of the Fourth National bank of New York, himself a member of the clearing house committee,
as follows:"The clearing house committee is clothed with almost absolute power, being second in power only to the association itself."At the congressional hearing on the banking trust Mr. Undermyer elicited the fact that no bank can run without the clearing house privilege, and that this privilege is granted or withheld upon the arbitrary dictum of the clearing house committee. After reciting this fact,
Mr. Hourwich proceeds as follows:"This committee is composed of Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City Bank of New York, a Rockefeller institution, Walter A.
Frew, president of the Corn Exchange bank, and James G. Cannon of the Fourth National bank, both of whom are directors in one or two institutions which are in Morgan control. Therefore out of five men, in whom is vested the power of deciding whether a bank fails or not, one is a Rockefeller man, while the other two represent Morgan. Puzzle, who runs the banks?"One striking feature of the president's message is his conception of the immediacy of the need of banking reform, for in a strong paragraph he sets forth his belief that this duty is so urgent that congress should face the discomforts and perhaps illness and even death of the heated season in order to do the work AT ONCE. Perhaps one may get an idea of the reason for this in the following Chicago dispatch to the Philadelphia Public Ledger:"The Chicago banks are calling their loans right and left. Little or no money is obtainable by mercantile interests, even with gilt-edged collateral, and then only at short term. Farmers throughout the middle west are being called upon by banks to sell their grain holdings in order to pay off loans. Loans have been denied the last few days to some of the greatest mercantile establishments in Chicago—firms whose financial stability is beyond question.
This attitude on the part of the banks has been taken, the Public Ledger correspondent is informed,
not because the banks are afraid of the ability of the firms in question
to meet their obligations at any time they are called upon to do so, but to discourage further commitments in view of the uncertainty regarding the tariff and currency legislation."No comment upon this telegram could better epitomize the sinister meaning back of it than the language of the Madison State Journal, which says:"In other words, the money trust is daring Uncle Sam to fulfill his promises to the people.""Now think what it means when a solvent business man, whose credit is as good as it can be, cannot borrow on that credit because a limited number of bankers do not want a monopoly tariff changed and are powerful enough to threaten 100-000,000 Americans with a panic because they object to Uncle Sam having the whip hand in the banking system."Orlando Dammitt has applied to

A Soliloquy
To mote or not to mote—that is the question:
Whether it is nobler in the mind to suffer
And walk, or hike or hire a horse
and buggy,
Or take up arms against a sea of
troubles,
Of carburetors, oil pumps and tires
that puncture,
Of gasoline that's boosted to the heavens,
Or is it best to walk and never know
them,
Or travel in the hot and dusty tram
car,
Thus not invited and thereby escaping
The heartache and the thousand natural shocks
That cars are heir to. 'Tis a consummation,
Perhaps, devoutly to be wished.

A Poor Provider
An old negro in Texas was asked if he was going to register. He wished to know how he would have to proceed. On being told that he had to swear to support the constitution,
his eyes widened, and, drawing a long breath, he said he couldn't do it, because he couldn't support himself.

Two Kinds of Macaroni
The new cook was helping her mistress to prepare dinner. All went well until the macaroni was brought out. The cook looked with surprise
as she beheld the long white sticks.
But when they were carefully placed
in water she gave a choking gasp.
"Did you say, missus," she said in an awed voice, "that you were going to eat that?"
"Yes, Jane," was the reply; "that is what I intended to do. But you seem surprised. Have you never seen macaroni cooked before?"
"No, ma'am," answered the cook.
"I ain't. The last place I was at they always used them things to light the gas with."

Particular as to His Language
Donald had been to Sunday school and on coming home was asked what he had learned. The lesson was the story of Joseph and the small learner was evidently full of his subject.
"Oh," he said, "it was about a boy, and his brothers took him and put him in a hole in the ground; and then they killed another boy, and took the first boy's coat and dipped it in the blood of this boy, and—"
"Oh, no, Donald, not another boy!" his sister interrupted, horrified. But Donald stood his ground.
"It was, too," he insisted. Then he added: "The teacher said 'kid,'
but I don't use words like that."

A Pleasant Souvenir
"Walt Whitman wasn't as successful as the English poet Alfred Noyes in making both ends meet with his poetry," said a Philadelphia editor.
"Walt's muse had nothing like the commonplace, commercial quality of the young Englishman's."

"I used to visit Walt Whitman in his old age in his little, two story,
wooden house in Mickle street, Sam-
den. One day—it's a pleasant so-venir, this, of old time Philadelphia
—one day in December I said to him:
"Well, Walt, how are things going this winter? Any Christmas subscriptions needed?"
"No," said the old poet. "No, indeed, I'm working now. I'm working for George W. Childs. He pays me $50 a month."
"Good," said I. "And what's your job with Childs?"
"Riding in the horse cars," said Walt. "I ride about the city. I talk to the drivers and conductors. I find out which of them need winter overcoats, and, guessing their size, I notify Childs, who fits them out forthwith. It's easy, pleasant work, and it saves Childs a lot of trouble over measurements and so forth."

Many Years' Test of Eckman's AlternativeFor several years a large number of voluntarily written testimonials from persons who recovered from Lung Trouble have been received by the makers of Eckman's Alternative,
a remedy for the treatment of Throat and Lung Troubles. Surely plenty of time to demonstrate its lasting value. You can write to any of them for confirmation. Here is one:

"Gentlemen: In the winter of 1903 I had an attack of Gripe, followed by Pneumonia and later by Consumption. In the winter of 1904
I had cough, night sweats, fever and raised quantities of awful looking stuffs and later I had many hemorrhages: at one time three in three successive days. Milk and eggs became so distasteful I could keep nothing down. Three physicians treated me. I was ordered to the mountains, but did not go. Eckman's Alternative was recommended by a friend. After taking a small quantity I had the first quiet night's sleep for weeks. My improvement was marked from the first. I gained strength and weight and appetite. I never had another hemorrhage and my cough gradually lessened until entirely gone. I am perfectly well."

Cherries are in Season

The cherry is one of the few fruits that are improved by cooking, and of all the desserts that can be made with them, none is more delicious than this pudding, and made with K C Baking Powder, the pastry
will be light and porous especially if you have a slow oven at the start to give it time to rise. Try this recipe at once and you will want it again and again as long as the cherries last.

K C Cherry Pudding

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.

2 cups sifted pastry flour; 2 level tea-
spoonfuls K C
Baking Powder;
1/2 teaspoonful salt;
1/2 cup butter; 2
eggs; 1 cup milk (scant); cherries;
salt or 1 table-
spoonful butter.

Sift together, three times, the flour, baking powder and salt, and work in the butter.
Beat the eggs, add the milk, and stir into the dry ingredients. Butter an agate or china baking dish, half fill it with choice cherries,
sprinkle with a little salt or add bits of butter;
turn the soft dough over the cherries and
bake about thirty minutes, or steam one hour.
Turn from the dish to have the cherries uppermost. Serve with hard sauce or with a cup of stoned cherries, cooked tender in a cup each of sugar and water.

This recipe is from "The Cook's Book."
It contains 90 tested recipes by Mrs. Hill among which are Strawberry and Raspberry Short Cakes and other desserts that will help you to make the most of fresh fruits while they are in season. "The Cook's Book" will be sent to one certificate from a 25-cent
can of K C Baking Powder. Address Jaques

A Warning

The wedding month is here and the parents of sweet June brides
should be warned by the experience of my friends, the Blanks.

The speaker was Simeon Ford.
Smiling, he continued:
"Why, what's the matter here?"
I called upstairs to Mrs. Blank one June morning, for the house looked bare and upset. "What's the matter?"
Have you sent your furniture to be stored?"

"No," Mr. Blank answered in a sour voice, "not at all. My daughter was married last week, and she has merely taken away the things
she thought belonged to her."

A Self Raising Proposition

A wandering peddler stopped at a southern cabin and opened his pack.
"Mammy, let me show you some self raising umbrellas," he began.

"No use, man; no use," interrupted the old colored woman as she busied herself about a boiler of clothes. "Cayn't use nothin' like dat."

"How about self raising window

THE RED BUTTON

Copyright, The Bobbe-Merrill Company.

Mrs. Moore turned back to summon Mr. Wade; as she did so, Mr.
Estrilla came down from the floor above.

"Oh, good evening, Mr. Estrilla!"
said Mrs. Moore. "Did your sister—"
Just then the voice of Captain Hanska broke in from behind the door.

"Wait a minute. Ask Mr. Wade
if he minds my not getting up. I've a cold and I've taken some medicine."

"Very well, Captain," replied Mrs. Moore. Estrilla, seeing that she was engaged, went on downstairs to the front door.

This narrative has gone so far,
from the point of view of Mrs.
Moore. We will shift now to Miss Harding; for a time let her mind be the crystal of our thought. We shall find it a scattering and superficial mind, but furnished forth
with good memory, the trick of observation, and an instinct for concrete expression. A moment before
Mrs. Moore came back and told Mr.
Wade that Captain Hanska would see him, Mr. Estrilla appeared at the door of the parlor. Although they had seen but little of him at
Mrs. Moore's, he was popular for a Latin lightness of temperament, a cheerful and winning smile, a nimble wit which lost nothing because of his quaint accent, and various,
winsome, actor tricks which Mrs.
Moore called "capers." At that moment they were singing Yip-hi-addy-hi-ay, then in their first run.
Mr. Estrilla, bundled up in hat and mackintosh, cut a curvet in the hall, kicked out one of his small Andalusian feet, joined a note of the chorus in a pleasant, light tenor voice, changed to a falsetto tone which was plainly an imitation of Miss Harding's singing, and whirled toward the outer door. Miss Harding called:

"Come in and sing!" But Mr. Estrilla only pivoted through the door,
calling:

"Buenas noches—yip-hi-addy-hi-ay!"

Perhaps five minutes later, Miss Harding went up-stairs for a handkerchief. For a moment she was absent-minded—a rare thing with her
—so that instead of turning on the second floor, where her room was situated, she continued another flight and 'brought up, suddenly aware of her mistake, at the third floor landing. Something held her there for a moment—the sound of high words from Captain Hanska's room. Miss Harding paused longer than necessary. She was an honorable girl enough, but the most honorable of us pay instinctive tribute to our curiosity.

"I tell you both, I won't," came Captain Hanska's rather harsh voice.

"Oh, I think perhaps I can make you change your mind," came other accents which, Miss Harding reflected, went perfectly with the personality of Mr. Lawrence Wade.

"Some sort of a rumus going on up there," said Miss Harding as she regained the parlor. Then remembering that she must account to Miss Jones for her presence on the third floor—the bachelor quarters of the establishment—she added
vaguely, "You can hear it just as plain!"

They had all stopped singing from very weariness of voice, and Mrs. Moore and Professor Noll had retired to leave the young couples
alone with their devices, when Mr.
Wade appeared again in the hall—
this time on his way out. Everyone saw him plainly, especially Miss Harding, who sat facing the
door.

"Look, who's here, Essie!" she whispered in an undertone to Miss Jones. As she recalled it afterward, he seemed a little pale. He cast no more than one quick absent
glance at the group by the piano;
and the door closed behind him.

Mrs. Moore had gone to bed on the ground floor. But Professor Noll did not retire immediately. A basic principle of the Noll Scientific Plan of Diet was light alimentation before retiring. By his special arrangement with Mrs. Moore, the maid, after cleaning up from dinner, always left a glass of hygienic buttermilk and two protose biscuits on the sideboard. Professor Noll ate slowly, glancing at his watch now and then that he might assure himself as to the proper timing on each mouthful. So he did not go upstairs until just before the company left. Captain Hanska, as I have said, lived just across the hall from him. The light was out in the Captain's room, he remembered, and everything seemed quiet. Nothing, he testified afterward, happened to disturb his sleep; "however"—he managed to throw in—"scientific diet makes sound slumber." Within ten minutes, the "company" left and the young women went to their room. There was silence in the house.

Silence until half past two o'clock
—and then Tommy North, who occupied the third floor front, came home from a stag smoker drunk.
He stood at a parlor cross-road of his life, this Tommy North. He was an attractive young man—
stubby, bright-eyed, red-headed,
quick-tongued, and twenty-eight.
His business of writing and selling advertising gave him all kinds of contact with all kinds of attractive people who liked him for his flashes of wit and his genuine warmth of heart. They were the kind of people, unfortunately, who conduct their social life before gilded bars,
or about luxurious cafe tables. So

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

ELOPES TWICE; IS RETURNING AGAIN

Mrs. Philip Hitchborn, Jr.

Mrs. Philip Hitchborn, Jr., the former Washington society belle who in September, 1911, eloped for the second time with Horace Wylie, prominent clubman of that city, is planning to return to the national capital from Europe the latter part of this month, it is reported.

Inflammatory.
At a dinner of firemen recently the following sentiment was proposed:
"The Ladies! Their eyes kindle the only flame which we cannot extinguish, and against which there is no insurance."

Sure Thing.
Some men who are always saying
"business before pleasure" never give intelligent attention to either.

It was a man, you may have observed, who couldn't talk after being kicked in the face by a bay steer.

Why Stand for Such Agony?

It is Entirely Unnecessary that Anyone Suffer with Boils, Carbuncles, Abscesses and Other Eruptive Sores.

Every spring a host of people are the plagues of woe: they suffer the intense agony of carbuncles, boils, erysipelas and other extremely painful and often dangerous abscesses. All they require is to enabling the blood to quickly infuse new life into the tissues, to stop decay, to prevent the formation of those accumulations of broken down cells that rapidly multiply into the form of carbuncles and other eruptions.

Science cannot explain just why certain elements in the blood feed the bones,
others nourish the hair roots, and so on.
And it is this same mysterious action of S.S.S. that attacks all diseased spots, drives away all germs, heals all sores and supplants the activity of disease germs
with the powerful healing action of leu-cocytes. Remarkable testimonials have been written that prove beyond question
there is no blood disease but what can be cured by S.S.S. And in all those cases that were treated with mercury,
iodides, arsenic, copper and other minerals with no permanent effect, the most astounding recoveries have been made by S.S.S.
There is not a blood taint of any nature
that can remain in a system fortified by this most wonderful remedy, for it is absolutely pure and contains only those elements that the blood naturally assim-ilates, and which the tissues gratefully accept. It agrees with the most delicate stomach, even in those cases where the use of strong drugs has so weakened
the digestive system that medicine cannot be given. Get a $1.00 bottle of S.S.S. at any drug store and thus be assured of a complete cure of any eruptive blood disease. If your case is peculiar and you desire special advice write to

At noon President Poincaré, after his busy morning with diplomats and French residents, was the guest of the lord mayor and the corporation. He was driven from York house to Guild hall in a state carriage while troops lined the entire route and Life guards to the number of a field marshal's escort rode before and behind the carriage, conveying the visitor and Ambassador Cambon. The streets were thronged and President Poincaré received a tumultuous ovation.

Innovation of "Knee-let" to Be Clasped About Limb Accompanies Creation

NEW YORK, June 25.—"Oh, fellows, it's all off," exclaimed a small boy in one of the big department stores today, and immediately there was a wild rush. But it wasn't quite all off, but nearly. It was merely a display of the latest sensation in gowns from Paris, the "expose toilette," the first shipment of which has arrived from France. One young woman appeared on Fifth avenue in one of the creations and a traffic policeman had to be called to control the crowd.

According to the latest decree a "combination" with embroidered silk trunks will supplant corsets and petticoats. Then will come the gown, but this will be a filmy draped robe and monogrammed embroidered, silk stockings will peep forth from the dress, which will be so draped as to expose the lines and curves of the limbs as much as the figure.

Another innovation will be the "knee-let" which will rival the ankle-let in its display of trinkets and jewels, which will be clasped just below the knee, in full view as milady walks the avenue.

Weather permitting, a sandal pump of patent leather with the laces tied colonial fashion may be worn with the costume.

Even New Yorkers are doubtful if the fashion makers can "put this one over."

DIAMOND FAMINE DUE AFTER 1923

DENVER, Col., June 25.—We should worry. There will be no diamonds produced after the year 1923, unless an unusually productive field is discovered before that time.

"The output of the Kimberley fields of South Africa," said Bloom, "which now produce the entire world's supply of diamonds, is gradually falling and within ten years no diamonds will be mined there."

WILD MAN REPORTED

SIoux CITY, Iowa, June 25.—A
"wild man," naked and with long hair, is causing fear among women in the vicinity of Homer, Neb., across the river from Sioux City. Officers and citizens, after a night of searching, found the man's camp but not the man.

Bud's Thoughtfulness.
One of the younger set in Newton,
Kan., says that her mother is so cri-
pled with rheumatism and it is so hard to see her doing the week's washing that it is unendurable. "I always go shopping on washday," says the Bud.— Kansas City Star.

Something of a Lottery.
"What I want," said the young man,
"is to get married and have a peaceful, quiet home." "Well, sometimes it's like joinin' a debatin' society."

His Only Chance for Peace.
"A malcontent," mused the man at the head of the table, "is a man who is never satisfied with his lot. The only one that could bring peace to his rebellious spirit is the family lot."

Generally Succeeds.
A woman likes to marry a man who feels that he was born to command,
just to prove to him that he wasn't.

SHOWS PROSPER DESPITE SHOWER

Carnival Attracts Good Crowd Last Night in Spite of Downpour
in Afternoon

Despite a downpour of rain just as the afternoon business was becoming good, the carnival last night did a big business with a good sized crowd on the street. It is expected that tonight will prove the most successful so far, as the shows are now in full working order.

Among the larger attractions are Buckskin Ben's Wild West, where a typical wild west performance, consisting of broncho riding, fancy shooting, etc., is given. The Diving Girls show, a brand new attraction, is destined to draw big crowds. A large swimming pool has been constructed in the ground, and three young women give exhibitions of fancy diving and swimming, the dives being made from a springboard. The young women are really experts, and the show is one of the big attractions
on the street.

The Wortham & Allen wild animal arena is a trained animal circus of merit, and the performances includes a number of stunts by lions,
pumas, tigers and other beasts.

The motordome is a new attraction, and is one of the largest of its kind carried by any traveling organization. It consists of a circular track, set at an angle of more than 50 degrees, in which motorcyclists are held. The track could not be erected in time for the performance Monday evening but the races
are said to be thrilling.

Pharaoh's Daughter is an illusion show, in which a butterfly dance and other features are given. This show
also contains the mystery painting,
"The Shadow of the Cross," regarding which much has been written.
This show is intended particularly for the women, and the illusions are mystifying and beautiful.

The Carita show contains "Princess Carita," who is 26 years of age and weighs 28 pounds, and "Fat Emma," an unusually good natured fat woman, who is about the same age and weighs 320 pounds. The Cabaret show is a sort of vaudeville performance, and the Crazy House and the Dragon's Gorge are mechanical contrivances designed for funmaking.

The other attractions consists of several large tents where curios, animals and a few freaks are shown;
two riding devices, which includes
one of the finest riding galleries possible to produce for a traveling company, and a Ferris wheel; a couple of palmists, and other booths of different kinds.

Another of the more important attractions is "Sahara," the educated horse, which does some remarkable stunts in the way of adding, subtracting, etc.

The carnival will open each afternoon at 2 o'clock and each evening at 7:30.

CAT WALKED IN CAPITOL

MADISON, Wis., June 25.—Encased within thick walls of marble and stone, built to last a century, a cat
is crying for help in the newly built south wing of the state capitol. Just before the walls on the fourth floor
were closed up by the marble setters Monday, the cat, which has had the freedom of the building, strayed into the opening and the workmen set the slabs in place. The cries of the lucky feline were heard yesterday
and the workmen were ordered to remove a section of marble today to rescue the perishing.

PRaises COURSE BUT URGES QUICK TRIAL OF CASES

require production of all of the papers in the Diggins-Caminetti and Western Fuel cases. Representative Hinebaugh on the other hand, declared himself satisfied with the announcement that the cases would be pressed at once and will not urge a report by the rules committee on his resolution proposing an investigation by the house judiciary committee.

"I think the entire correspondence in the case should be made public," Kahn declared. "The statement issued at the white house contains only excerpts. The house is entitled to see the full letter files, and I shall certainly appear before the judiciary committee tomorrow to urge a favorable report on my resolution requiring McReynolds to submit this matter to the house."

An immediate and complete prosecution in which all of the facts will be developed for the jury to pass upon will be the only instructions issued by the administration to the special prosecutors to be named in the Diggins-Caminetti and Western Fuel company cases. This was made plain at the white house today. The president and Attorney General McReynolds were to name the new counsel during the course of the day.

Matt J. Sullivan, Thomas Hayden and Francis J. Heney, were still under consideration today for special prosecutor. Sullivan has many friends in the administration here and they were doing their best to land him, but it was insisted at the executive offices that the president and Attorney General McReynolds would select the special counsel from the standpoint of his standing at the bar, rather than through his influence with politicians.

Attacks McReynolds
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 25.—In a bristling statement in which he repeated his criticism of Attorney General McReynolds, John I. McNab, retiring United States district attorney today made public what he said was his last word regarding the controversy of McReynolds to postpone the Caminetti-Diggins white slavery and Western Fuel cases.

"No one in California will be deceived for an instant by the lame and puerile defense of the attorney general to the president. He said I should have wired to remind him. I had three times warned him that postponement would destroy these cases; that it was boasted that a postponement would be obtained by political influence at Washington."

that witnesses were being suborned and that one of the defendant's attorneys were jailed for attempting to corrupt witnesses.

"He wanted all these cases postponed with a view that they would be throttled and his rich and influential friends would be saved from trial."

Jury Lauds McNab
McNab appeared in Judge Van Fleet's court today and formally announced that he had severed his connection with the department of justice. Judge Van Fleet said: "Without reference to the nature of your departure I would be saying less than the truth if I did not state that we are losing a most painstaking and efficient prosecuting officer. It is with sincere regret that we learn you are retiring from office."

"I am glad the president has acted so promptly," said McNab today, discussing the telegram he received from the chief executive last night. "That closes the incident. The president declares my criticism of the attorney general was unjust but even President Wilson cannot change the facts. If it was right in May to tell me to proceed with the cases in question, it is wrong in June to tell me to stop. If it was right in June to tell me to stop, it is wrong now for the president to say proceed."

McNab declined to discuss further his promised "broadside" or to indicate what its nature would be. He said he had heard nothing but newspaper reports that the president would appoint Francis J. Heney, special prosecutor for the government in the Western Fuel case and the Diggins-Caminetti white slavery case. Both of these cases will go to trial in July.

On McNab's desk which he arranged today preparatory to leaving office were hundreds of letters and telegrams of laudation from all parts of California, congratulating him on his stand of denouncing Attorney General McReynolds.

Why Sudden Haste?
McNab's "last word" continues: "Now roused by the prick of public opinion, he (McReynolds) expresses his sudden determination to force an immediate trial by the aid of special counsel. Why this sudden paroxysm of virtuous haste?"

One of two things is true. Either the attorney general withheld from the president my repeated messages of warning that corruption and influence were destroying the cases and that postponement was fatal or official Washington is neither sensitive nor responsive to the charge of corruption in its public servants.

"In his gracious letter to his attorney general, the president now says: 'I approve heartily your suggestion that, under the circumstances, special counsel be employed—the ablest we can obtain' and 'we must press the cases with the utmost diligence.' The attorney general never made such a suggestion until he was caught stifling the cases to death with orders to postpone until autumn. This spasm of ex-cruciating virtue should have seized the attorney general a week ago."

Some men seem to have an idea that God gave them hands and feet to be either knockers or kickers.

TALK BUDGET SYSTEM

HOUSE DEMOCRATS IN SECRET CAUCUS FIGHT OUT NEW PLAN OF APPROPRIATIONS

WASHINGTON, June 25.—House democrats met in secret caucus today to fight out the controversy over the "budget" system of controlling appropriations by congress. Leader Underwood presented a budget plan, drawn by the special caucus committee.

Appointment of a "special select" committee composed of the party leaders and heads of the big house committees, to make the gross appropriations of congress fill the federal revenues was the plan offered to the caucus. This committee would allot maximum sums to the regular appropriation committee and present each year a complete fiscal program to the house. Underwood believes the senate would be morally bound to observe the appropriation limitations set by the "budget committee."

ARCHITECTS URGE PEACE

CHICAGO, June 25.—The Chicago business architects association today adopted resolutions calling upon the building employers' association to suspend its lockout order against 25,000 building trades workers and submit the dispute to arbitration. The architects suggested the creation of a permanent local board of arbitration to handle labor troubles in Chicago.

BARNES DENOUNCES DECISION RECALL

Calls Proposal Weird and Absurd in Speech Before Bar Association

SAYS THE PEOPLE ARE TYRANTS

Says Americans Are Not Capable of Self-Government in Excitement

WAUSAU, Wis., June 25.—(Special.)—The recall of judicial decisions was characterized as "weird and absurd" by Justice John Barnes of the supreme court in an address before the Wisconsin Bar association today. He had no sympathy with the recall principle, opposed the initiative, and scored a number of the recent proposals for governmental changes. In vigorous language he discussed the subject of the rule of the people declaring that majorities, unrestrained by a constitution, "can be as arbitrary and as tyrannical as any of the recognized tyrants of history." He says that hysteria drove us into war with Spain and as "popular" president as McKinley was found himself wholly unable to prevent action being taken by congress until our statesmen had time to ice their heads.

Decision Recall Vicious
"Another of our present day fads which I personally regard as vicious is the recall of judicial decisions," declared Judge Barnes. "I know that there are many respectable men of the bar who are not office seekers, who favor this innovation. The subject is one on which lawyers have their minds made up and the merits of which I do not intend to discuss. If 400,000 voters in Wisconsin are to vote to recall a judicial decision they should at least be required to read and understand the decision upon which they are to act as a court of last resort."

"This would be expecting a good deal too much, I feel, even from the legal profession. It is related of an Italian criminal that he was given an option to go to the galleys or read Guicciardini's history. He chose the history. But the war of Pisa proved too much for him and he concluded to take to the oars. I greatly fear that the average citizen would at least feel inclined to take to the woods to escape studying the decisions which occasion the greatest amount of comment and adverse criticism. This may be the fault of the decisions, but even those we must take as we find them. To me the proposition looks as weird and absurd as it would be to try our ordinary lawsuits at town meetings. I realize, however, that it is endorsed by many able men of undoubted sincerity. They may be right, but I do not think so. If the principle is worth fighting for by those believe in it, it is well worth serious opposition from those who believe that its operation would be disastrous."

Time to Cool Off
Judge Barnes commented on Secretary Bryan's recent statement that no war should be declared nor commenced for a stated period after the dispute arose, and until the principals have time to get together and talk it over.

"The object of the delay as has been frankly stated is to give the disputants time to cool off," said Judge Barnes. "It is no insult, to say that they are not capable of governing themselves while they are in a state of frenzy or while they are passing through periods of agitation, when party lines are tightly drawn and passion runs high. One in such condition is hardly capable of governing himself, to assert the contrary is the merest redemptation."

DOCTORS GIVE UP SHOOTS BACK LIFE

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., June 25.—James W. Woodward, Cuba, Ill., shot himself into good health after half a dozen physicians had tried to relieve his intense sufferings from dropsy. "What's the use of living?" asked Woodward of himself, and getting no answer he took a dose of morphine and fired a bullet through his heart. The baffled medics wondered why Woodward didn't die. An X-ray examination today revealed the fact that the bullet punctured a cavity containing the fluid and Woodward got instant relief when it flowed out. The patient is improving and is expected to recover.

MANY SEE SENIOR PLAY AT NORMAL

Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" Is Presented with Good Effect

The third Shakespearean dramatization in the normal school was staged last night in the auditorium where a large and appreciative audience listened with delight to a high class presentation of "Much Ado About Nothing." Miss McGarry of the Cumstock School of Oratory and instructor in dramatics in Northwestern university coached the players and although having spent but two weeks with the cast attained results which stamp her as one of the ablest in her profession.

While there was no hesitancy on the part of any of the performers, special honors must go to Miss Marie Schaeffle, as Beatrice; Virgil Bryan, as Dogberry; and Don Pedro, the Prince, for the clean cut portrayal of the characters which they represented. Edwin Dahl, Evan Peterson, Milton Fischer and Frank McDonald also performed creditably. The normal school orchestra rendered pleasing selections between acts.

WOMAN ON TRIAL

MADISON, Wis., June 25.—Lillian Haley of Chippewa Falls was brought to Madison yesterday to appear before Federal Judge A. L. Sanborn today to answer to a charge of blackmail. She was indicted by the grand jury at Eau Claire two weeks ago for attempting to blackmail, through the mails, a Chippewa Falls druggist to extort money. The arrest was made there yesterday.

According to United States Attorney John A. Aylward, the evidence tended to show she used an assumed name—Hector Vetruba. The woman is expected to enter a plea to the charge today.

Not Triplets.
My little grandson was told by his mother to run across the street and inquire of a lady who was going by with three little babes in a cart if they were triplets. He soon came back, looking much disappointed, and said: "No, they are not triplets. They were born the same day, but two of them are girls and the other one is a boy."

NEW YORK.—Big league baseball players who like to exercise their literary abilities by writing, or rather by signing their names to, articles on the world's series games, will come to grief this fall. Ban Johnson, president of the American league, has put his foot down on the practice, and rumor has it that Tom Lynch, president of the National league, feels the same with regard to National players.

She fainted, and thinking he had killed her, Bork blew out his brains. Mrs. Bork was unharmed.

GOVERNOR SIGNS BILL

MADISON, Wis., June 25.—Governor McGovern has signed the Hansen bill giving any city at its option power to construct, repair or maintain any harbor within or without the city at such depth as may be prescribed by the United States government engineers. The bill will aid materially in the improvement of harbors along the Wisconsin shore of Lakes Michigan and Superior. It was especially desired by the cities of Manitowoc and Sheboygan. Executive approval has also been given the Teasdale bill requiring towns to pay the tuition of high school students residing within a town who may desire to attend a free high school within the county. The town is required to pay a fee of $1 per week for each of such pupils. Statistics show the cost of educating pupils in the high schools of the state is approximately $1.96 per week.

BLAMES THE KAISER FOR HER POVERTY

Noted Anti-Prohibitionist Fails in Attempt to Have Ruler Inter-
cede for Her

ST. LOUIS, June 25.—To the failure of Kaiser Wilhelm to respond to an appeal for assistance in her efforts to collect an annuity of $3,060 from the United Brewers' association today is charged the present circumstances of Miss Phoebe Cousins, 70 years old, and helpless from the ravages of rheumatism.

Miss Cousins, anti-prohibitionist and anti-suffragist of international fame, is destitute and facing the poor house. She is at the home of Mrs. Halcyon Childs, former schoolmate. Mrs. Childs announces, however, that she has used up her small savings in caring for Miss Cousins and can no longer keep her.

The appeal to the kaiser was written by Mrs. Childs last September after all efforts to communicate with Adolphus Busch, the wealthy brewer, had failed to get beyond Busch's secretary, and requested the emperor to use his influence with Busch for the restoration of Miss Cousins' annuity.

Fr. De Coursey of St. Paul has been the guest of Fr. O'Brien of St. Joseph's church in this city.

Mr. A. Vaagan, who has been suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism, has gone to "The Old Sanitarium" at Prairie du Chien, Wis., for treatment.

The teachers' training school will open at Rushford next Wednesday, June 25, with a full corps of instructors and it is to be hoped that all the teachers who attend will be able to find room and board without any trouble, as it is a privilege the city may not soon again enjoy.

J. J. Akres' bid being the lowest, he received the contract to build the floral hall and cattle barn on the fair grounds at Preston.

AGED INDIAN IS ROBBED AT BRIDGE

Man Caught for Offense Is One Released the Same Morning from Second Jail Term

Frankie Whitewater, the familiar peg-legged, one-eyed old Indian, was robbed of ten dollars by two men at the foot of the wagon bridge Saturday evening. As a result, Robert Carman probably will soon begin his third term in the county jail this summer.

Two men approached Whitewater as he was about to cross the bridge on his way to his home near La Crescent. They asked for money, and Whitewater pulled out his purse. One grabbed his purse and both ran.

Dr. F. R. Weston was passing in his automobile. He saw the men running and stopping only to pick up Detective William Fitzsimmons, pursued. They caught one of the men, but not the one with the purse. At the station he was found to be Carman, who had been released from the county jail that morning.

About a month ago Carman finished another stretch, and had not been out of jail three days before he again ran foul of the law.

HOE TO FIGHT CASES

BY WOMAN WHO SAYS HE SUPPORTED HER

NEW YORK, June 25.—Contrary to the expectations of Miss Mae A. Sullivan, who has brought two separate actions asking $225,000 from Arthur Ingersoll Hoe, the son of the late printing press manufacturer, intends to fight the case to the limit, according to a man representing himself as Hoe's secretary today. Miss Sullivan alleges that Hoe finally confessed to her that he was married after he had lavished jewels on her, maintained her in an apartment at a rate of $50,000 a year and promised to make her his wife. Miss Sullivan stated, however, that their friendship was purely Platonic.

According to the secretary Mrs. Hoe does not believe any of the charges made against her husband and will aid him in his fight to prove them untrue.

CELEBRATE "ALEXANDRA DAY"

LONDON, June 25.—This was "Alexandra day" in London. Twenty thousand women, charmingly attired in white and wearing hats encircled with flowers, waylaid all Londoners on the streets during the day and compelled them to buy artificial roses in honor of Alexandra day, named to celebrate the jubilee of the queen mother's arrival in England.

It was fifty years ago on March 8 that Tennyson's "Sea King's Daughter From Over the Sea," landed in England, but a British March is no time for a flower fete, so the celebration was postponed.

WIFE KILLS CHAMPION

SPOKANE, Wash., June 25.—Falling in with Frank Fromm, champion revolver shot of the United States in 1908, was killed by his wife, who then committed suicide, was the theory of the police today. A note in Mrs. Fromm's handwriting was found beside the bodies in a tent at the rear of their home. Mrs. Fromm wrote that two young Spokane women were the cause of the tragedy.

CHICAGO, June 25.—Falling in with all other methods to suppress his wife's conversation so that he might sleep, Charles Sawyer, held a rubber tube attached to a gas jet to her nostrils early today and waited for the fumes to lull her to slumber. Mrs. Sawyer told the police her husband had threatened her several times. Sawyer said he tried the gas treatment when she threatened to talk him to death.

GOOD ROADS PICNIC FULFILLS PURPOSE

SPARTA, Wis., June 25.—Aaron Edminster's good roads picnic out Coles Valley way Tuesday was as successful as its promoter expected it would be. In arousing interest and enthusiasm in the matter of the improvement of the Coles Valley road. A subscription paper circulated among the farmers totalled a goodly sum and business men of the city are now being asked to subscribe an equal amount. The Monroe County bank and the Bank of Sparta have each subscribed $100 to the fund and other business and professional men are rapidly adding their names and their mites to the list. The sum total of the subscription from the farmers as well as from the business men will be paid into the town treasury and the town will be asked to contribute under its state aid law an equal sum.

A sickening and unjustified and revolting attack by a vicious brindle bulldog belonging to Bill Heidman upon a little black poodle caused a great disturbance on the Monroe County bank corner Friday evening about 6 o'clock, and was stopped by the police after the little black dog had been nearly killed and a lust for the blood of the bull had been aroused in every eye witness.

The dog was taken up by the police but was released to its owner today. It has caused a great deal of trouble to the police this summer by attacking other and smaller dogs on the streets, much to the delight and amusement of a few of its admirers.

An abusive language case from the Chaffee town swamp occupied the attention of Justice Lamson Friday morning. Lillian Greene called Mrs. Slabach a number of vile names and insinuated that some of her children had colored blood in them and questioned their legitimacy. Mrs. Slabach complained and Mrs. Greene was arrested. The entire neighborhood were witnesses, and they were all for the complainant and against the defendant. So Justice Lamson found the defendant guilty, fined her $25 and costs or thirty days in jail, and then upon the motion of City Attorney Z. S. Rice, who had conducted the prosecution, suspended the sentence pending the good behavior of the defendant.

TO BUCK STANDARD OIL IN THE EAST

Waters-Pierce Oil Company Reorganizes and Is Reported Backed by Rothschilds

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 25.—Details of the reorganization and refinancing of the Waters-Pierce Oil company, will be announced from the New York offices of the company on Wednesday, according to a representative of the company in St. Louis. The refinancing will not reveal any Rothschild connection, this representative said.

Despite the denial that the Rothschilds of England are not interested financially in the new Waters-Pierce Oil company, it is said in New York financial circles that the International banking syndicate, in which the Rothschilds are interested, has had charge of the refinancing and that the new company is to be known as the Superior Oil corporation.

What is believed to be the first step toward final completion of this reorganization was the granting of a charter by the Virginia state corporation commission at Richmond late Monday to the Pierce Oil corporation, with a capital of $21,000,000. C. A. Pierce of New York is named as the president of the company.

It is understood that this company is to operate generally throughout the eastern states in competition with the Standard Oil company. While several other names are given in the corporation papers as incorporations, they are known to be "dummies" for whom active officers will be substituted later.

YESTERDAY'S WORK IN THE LEGISLATURE

Senate

MADISON, Wis., June 25.—With only one vote to spare the senate sent to engrossment yesterday afternoon the Hedding boxing bill providing for an athletic commission to regulate and supervise boxing contests in the state. The final vote was preceded by a sharp debate in which Senator Teasdale characterized the bill as "an outrageous disgrace to Wisconsin." The Teasdale amendment to restrict the bill to the city of Milwaukee was defeated by a vote of 5 to 18. The bill will come up for final passage on Thursday.

Without a word of debate the senate sent to engrossment the Glenn bill for a continuation of the work of the state board of public affairs. The bill carries an appropriation of $40,000. The Bishop bill to legalize all saloon licenses that had been granted up to May 31, 1913, was ruled out of order by Senator H. C. Martin, president of the senate, on the ground that it was a duplicate of the bill that had been introduced by Senator Ackley. Senator Biehler took an appeal from the decision of the chair, but the chair was sustained by a vote of 14 to 11. The effect of the killing of the Bishop bill is to sound the death knell to over 400 illegal saloons in Milwaukee alone and many other saloons in other cities and villages of the state.

Senator White's bill to permit the state board of control to take over the management of the state industrial school for girls was killed by a vote of 22 to 3.

The Weigle bill to cut down the taxes of the Northwestern Mutual Life insurance company by providing that premiums shall not be subject to taxation was advanced by a vote of 13 to 12. The bill by the corporation committee for a full train crew was slaughtered without debate. The Scott bill for an investigation of the subject of city planning and building codes of the state was advanced and then sent to the joint finance committee for further consideration. The Bosshard bill for an investigation of all subjects relating to the propagation and conservation of fish, and the Zinn bill giving cities the power to license boiler inspectors were killed.

The first action during the night session was to kill the Gulickson bill changing the distribution of the street railway tax. The bill provided that 20 per cent of the tax should go to the county and 65 per cent to the towns, villages and cities through which the street railways operate.

By a vote of 21 to 5, the senate advanced to third reading the White-side bill for a special committee to investigate the state forest reserve and to prohibit the purchase of forest reserve land until July 1, 1915.

Third reading was ordered for the Peavy bill providing for the issue of county bonds for the reclamation of cut-over lands, providing for loans from trust funds and from funds of private origin, and for the appointment of a superintendent of farm loans and assistants.

The Spoor frog bill, providing a closed season in March and April, was ordered to third reading. The Dietrich bill amending the barber's license law, one provision of which makes the fee $2 instead of $1, was sent to third reading.

The senate ordered to third reading and then under suspension of the rules passed unanimously the Kneen bill requiring telephone companies to take out a certificate of convenience and necessity for the construction or extension of telephones exchanges where one company already exists. Notice of such intention must be filed with the state railroad commission.

The one day's rest in seven bill was advanced in the senate.

After considerable debate, the senate killed the Jennings bill providing for a four-year term for the mayor, treasurer and city attorney of Milwaukee.

Assembly

The assembly indicated its approval of the Chinnock plan of qualifying for a political candidacy when it engrossed the Hudson assemblyman's bill providing that candidates may pay a fee in lieu of circulating nomination papers. The assembly killed the Gulickson bill abolishing the poll tax and the Bingham bill regulating the issue and sale of stocks and bonds of corporations. The bill for the purchase of additional land for the proposed park at the first territorial capital at Belmont was engrossed. The finance committee bill appropriating $5,000 additional for sending the Wisconsin survivors of the battle of Gettysburg to the semi-centennial celebration next week was advanced by the assembly.

The assembly refused to indefinitely postpone the bill placing under the inheritance tax law estates that have been transferred within six years of the demise of a person. Assemblyman Roessler, floor leader of the democrats, led the opposition to this measure. By a close vote the assembly killed the bill giving the railroad commission power to change the tracks of a railroad where it is deemed in the interest of public convenience and necessity.

Another attempt will be made today to save the saloons that would otherwise be abolished under the decision of the supreme court in the Baker law cases. The assembly last night after a protracted fight recalled a bill on the senate calendar that will permit of an amendment that will legalize 400 saloon licenses that must otherwise be abandoned if some bill is not passed. The Walsh bill was on the calendar slated for death. As this was the only bill of this character that would permit of such an amendment, Assemblyman Walsh introduced a resolution recalling the bill. Assemblyman Goff moved the indefinite postponement of the bill and then seeing that the motion would fail, several members walked out of the assembly to break a quorum. After an hour wait some of the members returned, there was a call of the house, which was raised and the Walsh resolution was passed by a vote of 13 to 40. The resolution was received in the senate this morning. The Bishop bill to the same effect was killed by the senate yesterday.

The assembly last night killed the bill that would permit the merging of the office of inspector of oils with the industrial commission at a saving of about $40,000. Assemblyman Nye moved its indefinite postponement. It was laid over until July 8 the joint resolutions providing for a legislative investigation of the subject of a market commission and the Husting resolution, to permit the state to purchase water power sites if it desires.

The assembly laid over until July 8 the Hull bill for an appropriation for instruction in rural schools of the subjects of agriculture and manual training.

A committee of five members was appointed to consider the proposition of adjourning until July 8 to give the finance committee and water power committee time to consider all bills in committee so that all measures may be reported out. The house committee reported in favor of such action this morning. Senator Teasdale's bill for state aid for rural schools was ordered to a third reading.

Dr. Johnson's Rebuke.

Dr. Johnson was once in company with a gentleman who affected to maintain Dean Berkeley's strange position "that nothing exists but as perceived by some mind." When the gentleman was going away Dr. Johnson said to him: "Pray, sir, don't leave us; for we may, perhaps, forget to think of you and then you will cease to exist."

Welsh Gold Mines Still Worked.

Welsh gold mines, in one of which a rich vein is reported to have been struck, have been systematically worked for over sixty years. Gold was first discovered in the principality in 1845, in a lode, on the Cloggan mountain.

Chicago Livestock
CHICAGO, June 25.—A general downpour of rain in the northwest and in the middle west today sent grain prices tumbling to new levels for two weeks. A selling drive on wheat sent each month down 1-2c at the start and caused even further decline, but toward noon the market firmed and had fractional recovery.

Corn slumped badly at the start, but later with prices 3-4c under yesterday's close shorts engaged in some covering and the market rallied to the opening prices, just 3-8c under the closing figures yesterday.

Oats moved downward nearly a cent in the early trading but had a rally when buying started on the dip and at noon September was only 1-4c under yesterday's close with 1-4c under the closing figures yesterday.

Provisions were weak at the start on an easier hog market and the weakness in grain was another bearish factor.

Some covering by shorts induced an afternoon rally in the wheat pit that brought prices up 3-8 to 5-8c over the day's opening and closed the market strong.

Corn and oats made similar rallies and for the same reason. The result was that all the grains closed at about top notch figures for the day and higher than the opening quotations.

Provision prices were not affected by the afternoon trading. Provisions closed a trifle lower than the day's opening.

Watching The Scoreboard

Veau Gregg qualified as a "Casey" in the second game of the Naps-Tiger double header. Sent in as a relief pitcher in the ninth with a Detroit player on every base, two out and the score a tie, Gregg gave Veau a base on balls, forcing in the winning run.

St. Louis and Washington both applied the whitewash brush in handling their games yesterday. The Browns drew thirteen hits off the Chicago pitchers, Stovall leading with three.

The Giants and the Cardinals also delivered shutouts. Tesreau held the Dodgers to five hits.

Griner won his own game against the Cubs, driving out a triple in the fifth and coming in on Huggins' single for St. Louis' only run.

If the Phillie pitchers will just be reasonable and hold opposing teams to a half dozen runs or so, the rest of the team may be expected to bat on victories. The artillery is still in action. Cravath had a double and single yesterday, Luderus three singles and Knabe a triple and single.

ATHLETE HURLER STARTS BIG TRIP

Fred Wolters, twirler for the Athletics, with Thomas Brom, left at noon yesterday for St. Louis, in a sixteen foot row boat propelled by a tiny over-board motor. The two expect to complete their jaunt down the river by the middle of July. They will sell their outfit in St. Louis, and return home by rail, via Chicago.

JOHNSON SCORES JOE BIRMINGHAM

CHICAGO, June 25.—President Ban Johnson of the American league, in commenting today upon the suspension of Joe Jackson, premier hitter of the Cleveland Naps, declared that Jackson's conduct on the field Sunday proved that Manager Joe Birmingham of the Naps is not competent to manage the American league team.

"The trouble provoked by Jackson might have started a riot," said Johnson, "and anything approaching that would mean the abolition of Sunday baseball in Cleveland. The failure of Birmingham to realize this and to handle his players so as to prevent a disturbance on big days convince me that he is not competent to manage one of our teams."

FOILED—KILLS FAMILY

BUDAPEST, June 25.—When his wife cut him down after he had vainly attempted to hang himself, John Salfek became so angry that he killed her and his four children with a hatchet this afternoon.

LOUISIANA TWENTY ROUND BOUTS END

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 25.—No more twenty round boxing matches will be permitted in Louisiana. Governor Hall today issued a sweeping edict in which he hints the militia will be called out if necessary to enforce the law. The White-Britton match scheduled for July 4 on the other side of the river will be pulled off in the city proper and will be for ten rounds. However, it is barely possible that the governor may object even to this.

BLUE BOOK IS OUT

MADISON, Wis., June 25.—The Wisconsin Blue Book for 1913 has made its appearance, unexpectedly early. The state printer is turning them out by the hundreds to be sent to every corner of the state. Each member of the legislature receives 250 copies for constituents while one copy each is sent to county and state officials. Copies also are sent free to all schools and to libraries, and publication concerns which send requests to the superintendent of public property. To all others the books are sold by the superintendent.

DAHL BACK TO WESTBY

MADISON, Wis., June 25.—Former State Treasurer A. H. Dahl is preparing to return to his old home at Westby, Vernon county, to live. He has sold his Madison home to A. M. Stoddard. It is believed Mr. Stoddard bought the place for Holger Toftoy of St. Paul, vice president of the Stoddard-Toftoy company, who is contemplating making Madison his future home.

O'NEILL'S WORK IS CLASSY, SAYS CRITIC

Steve O'Neill.

Steve O'Neill, the young backstop of the Cleveland Naps, has just been handed a bouquet by Louis A. Dougher, the Washington critic, who was pretty hard in his criticism of the Naplander last year.

"Steve, you're the goods," says Dougher. "Last year you were handicapping your pitchers and beating your team out of ball games. This year you're delivering in fine style. You're some class behind the bat."

BADGER BAR IN MEET AT MADISON

MADISON, Wis., June 25.—The Wisconsin Bar association's annual meeting was opened here with a large attendance of members from all parts of the state. The annual address will be delivered today by Justice Andrew A. Bruce of the supreme court of North Dakota, president of the law faculty of the Wisconsin state university.

President John M. Olin of the state association was unable to be present, and the meeting was opened last night by C. B. Bird, who took his place at Mr. Olin's request, and spoke of the popular prejudices against the profession of law.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Griffith bumped Chance, 3 to 0, yesterday afternoon, in a mighty smart battle, pitched by George McConnell and Joe Boehling, a young Dutch left-hander from Richmond, who slipped two over on Cleveland. VACUUM BOTTLES

At Special Prices

An English chemist made the Vacuum bottle first, a generation ago. His need to preserve liquids at a fixed temperature without the use of heat or refrigerator suggested making a bottle within a bottle and creating a vacuum by pumping out the air between them. No cold, no heat, could pass through the void.

The "Caloris" and the "Vaco" bottle were commercially practical adaptations of the chemist's idea. Hot or cold drinks may be packed with lunches to be eaten hours afterward.
